

Annexe 3. Major exporters and importers

Annexe 3.1 Annual authorized small arms and light weapons exports by major exporter (annual exports of at least USD 10 million), 2004

Exporter	USD value (rounded) (unless stated otherwise)	Main importers (top five by value)*	Main types of small arms and light weapons exported (top five by value)*	Remarks
Austria	At least 109 million EUR 137 million (USD 174 million)*	US, Germany, Iran ¹ , Russian Federation, Switzerland US, Russian Federation, Switzerland, Iran, Malaysia*	Revolvers/pistols, sporting/hunting rifles, parts/accessories revolvers/pistols, parts/accessories sporting/hunting weapons, ammunition	Does not report exports of military weapons and pistols/revolvers to UN Comtrade. Hence the values of these categories (based on importers' reports) are likely to be underestimated.
Belgium	At least 102 million	US, Portugal, UK, France, Italy	Parts/accessories sporting/hunting weapons, sporting/hunting shotguns, sporting/hunting rifles, shotgun barrels, ammunition	Does not report exports of military weapons and pistols/revolvers to UN Comtrade. Hence the values of these categories (based on importers' reports) are likely to be underestimated. Belgium no longer publishes a national arms export report (see Small Arms Survey, 2006, Table 3.1, pp. 68–69).
Bosnia-Herzegovina	11 million	Saudi Arabia, Indonesia, Germany, UK, US	Ammunition, revolvers/pistols, military firearms	Arms export report covering 2004 exports only includes information on authorizations, not on actual deliveries.
Brazil	At least 112 million	US, Indonesia, Colombia, Algeria, Germany	Revolvers/pistols, ammunition, sporting/hunting rifles, sporting/hunting shotguns	Does not report exports of pistols/revolvers and small arms ammunition to UN Comtrade. Hence the values of these categories (based on importers' reports) are likely to be underestimated.
Bulgaria	Medium producer, but little is reported about its exports.
Canada ²	91 million	US, Saudi Arabia, France, Denmark, Oman	Ammunition, sporting/hunting rifles, parts/accessories sporting/hunting weapons, military firearms
China	At least 51 million Small Arms Survey estimate: USD 100 million (Small Arms Survey, 2004, Annexe 4.1)	Iran, US, Bangladesh, Sudan, Philippines	Military firearms, parts/accessories revolvers/pistols, parts/accessories sporting/hunting weapons, sporting/hunting shotguns, military weapons ³	Customs data is likely to underestimate actual exports, as China does not report on many of its exports, and hence values are based on importers' reporting.
Croatia	18 million	US, Saudi Arabia, Philippines	Revolvers/pistols, ammunition, military firearms
Czech Republic	At least 51 million	US, Germany, Thailand, Georgia, France	Revolvers/pistols, sporting/hunting rifles, ammunition, parts/accessories revolvers/pistols	Does not report exports of military weapons to UN Comtrade. Hence the values of these categories (based on importers' reports) are likely to be underestimated. Arms export report covering 2004 does not make it possible to determine the total value of exports of small arms and light weapons.

Finland [†]	38 million	US, UK, Norway, Sweden, Germany	Sporting/hunting rifles, ammunition, parts/accessories sporting/hunting weapons, sporting/hunting shotguns, military firearms
France	At least 36 million EUR 11 million (USD 14 million) ⁴⁵	Netherlands, Germany, US, Portugal, Canada Oman, Norway, South Korea, Switzerland, Cameroon*	Rocket/grenade launchers, ammunition, parts/accessories sporting/hunting weapons, sporting/hunting rifles	Does not report exports of military weapons and pistols/revolvers to UN Comtrade. Hence the values of these categories (based on importers' reports) are likely to be underestimated.
Germany	At least 307 million	US, Netherlands, France, Switzerland, Spain	Revolvers/pistols, ammunition, sporting/hunting rifles, rocket/grenade launchers, parts/accessories revolvers/pistols	Does not report exports of military weapons to UN Comtrade. Iran	At least 14 million	Bangladesh, Syria, Pakistan, Italy, Ghana	Shotgun barrels, ammunition, parts/accessories sporting/hunting weapons, military firearms, parts/accessories revolvers/pistols	Does not report exports of revolvers/pistols to UN Comtrade. Hence the value of this category (based on importers' reports) is likely to be underestimated.
Israel	At least 20 million	US, Serbia and Montenegro, Mexico, Austria, France	Ammunition, revolvers/pistols, parts/accessories revolvers/pistols, parts/accessories sporting/hunting weapons, military firearms	Only reports exports of parts/accessories sporting/hunting weapons to UN Comtrade. Hence the total value (based on importers' reports) is likely to be underestimated.
Italy	At least 390 million	US, France, UK, Spain, Germany	Sporting/hunting shotguns, ammunition, sporting/hunting rifles, revolvers/pistols; parts/accessories sporting/hunting weapons	Does not report exports of military weapons to UN Comtrade. Hence the values of these categories (based on importers' reports) are likely to be underestimated. The Italian export report includes an annexe with information from the Customs Agency (Agenzia delle Dogane) on actual deliveries by company, product, and value (Italy, 2005, pp. 191–214). No total figure for SALW exports and no breakdown by recipient country are given, however.

Portugal	16 million	US, Belgium, Spain, Sweden, Germany	Parts/accessories sporting/hunting weapons, sporting/hunting rifles, sporting/hunting shotguns, ammunition, shotgun barrels	Publishes an export report, but it does not detail the share of small arms and light weapons in total arms exports.
Romania	Medium producer, but little is reported about its exports.
Russian Federation	At least 42 million 441.9 million (422.4 million SALW and 19.5 million SALW ammunition)*	US, Cyprus, Germany, France, Kazakhstan South Korea, Jordan, Kyrgyzstan, Mexico*	Sporting/hunting shotguns, ammunition, sporting/hunting rifles, revolvers/pistols	Customs data is likely to underestimate actual exports, as the Russian Federation does not report on many of its exports, and hence values are based on importers' reporting.
Serbia and Montenegro	29 million	Israel, US, Iraq, Myanmar, Belgium	Ammunition, military firearms, sporting/hunting rifles, revolvers/pistols, military weapons
Singapore	Medium producer, but little is reported about its exports.

US	618 million	Egypt, Saudi Arabia, South Korea, Canada, Japan	Ammunition, rocket/grenade launchers, military firearms, parts/accessories sporting/hunting weapons	Export report only includes information on authorizations, not on actual deliveries.

* For UN Comtrade data: excluding transfers contributing less than 1% of the total annual value.

 NISAT (2007a; 2007b); UN Comtrade (2007). Customs codes: 9301 (military weapons), 930120 (rocket and grenade launchers, etc.), 930190 (military firearms), 9302 (revolvers and pistols), 930320 (sporting and hunting shotguns), 930330 (sporting and hunting rifles), 930510 (parts and accessories of revolvers and pistols), 930521 (shotgun barrels), 930529 (parts and accessories of shotguns or rifles), 930621 (shotgun cartridges), 930630 (small arms ammunition).

♣ National arms export report: information covering transfers in 2004.

♠ Pyadushkin (2006): information covering transfers in 2004.

Note 1: UN Comtrade data in this table was calculated using NISAT's reliability index (see Small Arms Survey, 2005, Box 4.1, pp. 99–100; Marsh, 2005). All values given here are rounded.

Note 2: The cut-off date for inclusion of data from national arms export reports in this table is 31 January 2007.

Note 3: Customs data and national arms export reports diverge for a number of reasons. Two important causes for discrepancies are: (a) unlike customs data, national arms export reports mostly do not include exports of whatever is categorized as 'civilian' weapons; and (b) many countries use the Wassenaar Arrangement Munitions List (ML) in their arms export reports. The categories of the ML list, with one exception (ML1), do not distinguish small arms and light weapons from other types of weapons. The Small Arms Survey records the ML1 value in the table; hence many types of small arms and light weapons, and all types of small arms ammunition, are excluded. For further details, see Small Arms Survey (2005, pp. 101–02).

Note 4: Some top producers of small arms, e.g. China and the Russian Federation, do not publish any arms export reports and only limited customs information. In order to properly reflect their presumed importance in the small arms trade, the Small Arms Survey goes beyond mirror data. China is still estimated to export USD 100 million worth of small arms and light weapons. For details, see Small Arms Survey (2004, ch. 4, Annexe 4.1). For the Russian Federation, figures were developed on the basis of field research (Pyadushkin, 2006).

Note 5: In this table, 'transfer' means sales, international assistance and training, and other kinds of transfers.

NB 1: Top exporters (those with an annual export value equal to or greater than USD 100 million, according to UN Comtrade and estimates) are set in boldface.

NB 2: 'Ammunition' in the table refers to shotgun cartridges and small arms ammunition combined.

NB 3: Category 9301 (military weapons) is a mixed category, containing both small arms/light weapons and larger conventional weapons. It was replaced by four new categories in the newest revision of the UN Comtrade Harmonized System (HS 2002), facilitating differentiation between small arms and light weapons and other weapons, among them the small arms and light weapons categories 930120 and 930190. Some countries still use HS 1996, however, and their reported value for 9301 may therefore include military weapons other than small arms and light weapons. The calculations on which this table is based include data from HS 2002, HS 1996, and HS 1992 to account for all transfers of military small arms and light weapons reported to UN Comtrade. For the older HS codes, the UN Register of Conventional Arms (UN Register) and the SIPRI Yearbook were consulted to see whether any of the transfers were likely to concern large-calibre artillery. This was not the case for major exporters and importers during 2004 (otherwise the respective 9301 value(s) would have been taken out of the calculation). For more information on revisions of the UN Comtrade Harmonized System, see Small Arms Survey (2005, pp. 99–100, Box 4.1) and Marsh (2005).

Endnotes

¹ Iran reports USD 2.5 million worth of imports of military firearms (930190) from Austria, and Austria reports USD 0.7 million worth of exports of sporting and hunting rifles (930330) to Iran. Neither information is mirrored by the partner country's reporting.

² The Canadian export report covering 2004 exports had not been published as of 31 January 2007 (nor had the one covering 2003 transfers).

⁴ The Finnish export report covering 2004 exports had not been published as of 31 January 2007.

⁵ Calculated from France, 2005, Annexe 14. The figure contains both small arms and light weapons.

⁶ Some of these exports may actually be transit goods (see Small Arms Survey, 2003, pp. 104–105).

⁷ Iran reports USD 2.5 million worth of imports of military firearms (930190) from Austria, and Austria reports USD 0.7 million worth of exports of sporting and hunting rifles (930330) to Iran. Neither information is mirrored by the partner country's reporting.

⁸ Switzerland reports USD 0.2 million worth of exports to Iran, of which USD 71,000 refer to sporting and hunting shotguns (930320). Iran reports USD 0.3 million worth of imports of this category from Switzerland. The reliability index favours Iran's reporting for the same 930320 category, resulting in a total value of USD 0.3 million worth of transfers from Switzerland to Iran in 2004. For more information on the reliability index, see Small Arms Survey (2005, Box 4.1, pp. 99–100) and Marsh (2005).

⁹ Austria reports USD 0.4 million worth of exports of parts/accessories of revolvers/pistols (930510) to Israel. This information is not mirrored by Israel.

¹⁰ Some of these imports may actually be transit goods (see Small Arms Survey, 2003, pp. 104–105).

¹¹ The total value of Saudi Arabia's imports contains USD 117 million worth of shotgun cartridges (930621). This value is extremely large and might actually be concealing imports of more sensitive weapons.
